Good day everyone and welcome to this podcast. I'm your host Ashton. Today we're going to have a look at a spirit that is in operation in many people's lives. The spirit is prevalent in families. It is prevalent in people who are orphans, people who are rejected, people who don't fit into society's norms. And these people often become victims and as a result they pick up a victim spirit, a victim mindset. And they are often preyed upon by others and they are targeted, especially if you look in the circles of bullies and how bullies target those who have a victim mindset.

And today we're going to look at and expand upon the concept of the victim mindset and what the victim spirit is and how it operates inside of a Christian. And not only a Christian but also those who are under heavy oppression by people, by governments and by circumstances and so on and so forth. So today we're going to go and just open this up real wide to see if we ourselves are affected by this victim mentality. The devil never plays fair but he does play for keeps and you find that people who have this victim mindset or victims are always pounced upon by people who don't play fair.

They will use dirty tricks and tactics to undermine whatever this person that they are trying to hurt is doing. And so the devil is looking to get a greater portion inside of that person. Now whether it is generationally this victim mentality is coming from the parents and the grandparents or whether it is through some type of trauma, if you were S-Aid or social injustices or just friends who betray you continuously or being around people who are false all the time towards you.

This ultimately opens up a stronghold for the devil to get a foothold inside of you and when he enters he refuses to leave. But God has put measures in place for you and I to help us so that we can combat the issues of the devil. In Psalm 16 verse 5 and 8 it says, The Lord is my chosen and my assigned portion, my cup, you hold and maintain my lot. Speaking of God, the lions have fallen for me in pleasant places. Yes, I have a good heritage. I will bless the Lord who has given me counsel.

Yes, my heart instructs me in the night seasons. I have set the Lord continually before me because he is at my right hand and shall not be moved. And then Psalm 22 verse 9 to 11 says, Yet you are he who took me out of the womb. You made me hope and trust when I was on my mother's breast. I was cast upon you from my very birth. From my mother's womb you have been my God. Be not far from me for trouble is near and there is none to help. And Psalm 139 verses 17 to 18 says, How precious and weighty are you.

Thoughts to me, O God, how vast is the sum of them. If I could count them, they would be more in number than the sand. When I awoke, could I count to the end? I would still be with you. As you can see from the scriptures, God has no plan for us to be victims of anything. He's given us dominion from the start, from the days of Adam, and then through Christ Jesus. He's given us absolute dominion. But the devil wants to come and steal, kill and destroy that which is still.

But the devil wants to steal, kill and destroy and break us to the point that we become victims and we become submissive to him rather than to God. Once a person has been traumatized or victimized to the point of breaking, their thinking becomes polluted. They develop false conclusions and convictions. It's like somebody who believes something in their mind that they perceive as truth. But it's not truth. It's just a perception in their mind. And then they go off physically on what they think.

But they cannot really substantiate or give proof or evidence or point to a fact or point in time about what they are speaking about. And if they can't. And if they can't. And if they can't get this out, then various behaviors are exhibited. Illicit behaviors. Things like overeating. Lying. Some people are then prone to become violent. They have chemical abuse. And we know that that is just drug addictions. Alcohol abuse. Some people become sexually perverse.

Some people become sexually perverse. They develop phobias. They develop phobias because of this victim spirit. You're afraid of this. You're afraid of that. You're afraid to go there. You're afraid to go there. You're afraid to try this. You're very reclusive. Or alternatively, there's excessive spending to help compensate. Or there's also just a lack of effort in anything that you want to do. Whether it be at work. Whether it be in your own business.

At home. And this is all part of that victim spirit that is in operation within your life. Now you understand that. Or you should understand. Or at least try to understand that. Your wounds that you experience. They're either wounds that are done intentionally or unintentionally. Unintentional wounds are normally caused by insensitive people who would just say things. And you would get hurt unintentionally by what was said. And then intentional wounds are wounds directly targeted at you.

This person is coming at you. Now if you do not have the emotional capacity. The emotional maturity. To deal with what has gone on. Then you're going to become a victim. Or you will remain a victim of the circumstances. The traumatic circumstances you are going through. And as a result. The patterns you develop in your life. Will always be victim mindset patterns. You will keep these patterns alive. Until by the power of Jesus Christ. The power of the Holy Spirit.

These patterns are broken over your life. If your life is only continually shaped by the people who are oppressing you. Then you are definitely suffering from a victim mindset and you need to come out of being oppressed by other people who hold you back, put you down and who circumvent your blessings in your life. I recall working with someone and I was trying to work with them and this victim mentality, this victim mindset was such a strong tower that light barely got through and even the light that did get through wasn't enough to change the mind.

You know you are in a really bad state when you start agreeing with the enemy, you start agreeing with the devil, you start saying things like, well this is my lot in life and this is my portion and maybe it's meant for me to have this this way as opposed to what the word of God says. When you come into agreement with the enemy, you then completely shut out the work of the cross for your life. You completely shut out the assistance God is prepared to offer and give to you because you are coming into agreement with the enemy.

And when the enemy has a signed covenant with you to say that this is your lot, this is your portion, then nobody will be able to assist you until you change, until you allow the word of God to come into your heart and into your mind and repent and ask Father God for forgiveness for the agreements that you made with the enemy. You will lose your value, you will lose your dignity, if you embrace a victim mindset, if you embrace the victim spirit, you will be treated like a dog.

You will be unimportant and be okay with being unimportant. Yet, God has a specific role, he has a specific place for you and he has a specific assignment which requires you to get up and get into the things of God. But because of the mindset and the fear that comes with it, the stronghold of fear, that fear grip, you are now afraid to move into the things that God would want you to move into. And if this bullying, if this victim mindset, if this traumatic experience started at a very young age, then the rest of your life, if this is not addressed appropriately, it's going to hamper your maturity, it's going to hamper your development, it's going to hamper your progress, it's going to hamper your finances, it's going to hamper your relationships, it's going to hamper every aspect of your life because that victim spirit attracts predators.

And when the predators come, the lies and the deception and the people that use you and abuse you and treat you as nothing, they show up. And they will use you for everything that you have, as long as you can give, as long as they can put you down, as long as you don't talk back, as long as you don't stand up, they will always be in your life because that's what a predator does. A predator will devour that which is in front of them. If it's edible, they are going to eat it.

If it's not fighting back, if it's not resisting, they see it as an easy meal. And you allow people then to be predators in your life. And this is going to stop you from coming into your full potential. Proverbs 19, verse 25 is a very dark passage in the scriptures and it speaks of the time a particular man went into a city to lodge and he met this man on the way and the man said to him, come and stay by my house. He offered the man hospitality and this man had a wife.

He went to go fetch his wife because his wife ran away and the men of the city came and said to the owner of the house, we saw you take this man in, bring him out. We would like to have relations with him and the man begged him and said, this is an evil thing. Here's my wife and the man gave, or here's my daughter and the man gave his wife and the men took the concubine and they had intercourse with her and abused her. Listen to that. They abused her all night until the morning and when the dawn began to break, they let her go.

These were predators and they were given victims and all they did was had intercourse and assaulted the woman all night. Now in the spiritual warfare context, this particular passage leads to a very high ranking demonic demon that came back into Israel through what happened here and I'm not going to say his name, but anyway, that's how he got back into Israel because it never had a thing like this been seen since they had left Egypt and when this particular man murdered his wife, his concubine, his concubine and cut into 12 pieces and scattered her after she was abused and raped in such a violent manner, this particular demon came back, it was invited back into the camp of Israel or the city of Israel.

Every trauma in the cycle of being a victim opens the door to a demon to come and attach itself. This demon will whisper lies, you're not good enough. Nobody wants you, you're not worth it. And it will bring a spirit of fear and it will bring a spirit of intimidation and remember these are literal spirits. The spirit of fear is a literal spirit in spiritual warfare. The spirit of intimidation is a literal spirit and one of the biggest ones is the spirit of hopelessness.

Hopelessness. That is a very huge spirit. And the victim mindset, the victim spirit brings these three spirits with it and they become charged up because while you're trying to deal with the victim mentality, you've got to still build the person up. You've got to strengthen them and give them godly resolve so that they are not in fear and still deal with those anxiety issues that they have. So building the person up has to be done in a multi-pronged approach and not just a one size fits all.

So what are some of the ways that this victim spirit operates in our lives? It does not know boundaries. Your personal boundaries are always being violated. The predator will consistently come in into your space, violate your space, touch your things, move your things. They will lay claim to your things, things go missing. You are always the one who comes up short. Your boundaries are just never respected. You can suffer abuse. This person, they, either one of them.

Physically hit you, or if you're in a relationship, they want to dominate you sexually, and lead you to do perverse things for them, so they can exercise their dominance over you. So, emotionally, they use every kind of word to tear you down. Whether they're calling you stupid, whether they're calling you a liar, useless, whether they're calling you a dog, whether they're calling you not worth the time of day, they will do this. And spiritually, they will try to keep you away from the house of God, because they know you might be strengthened there.

So, they will alienate you and isolate you from godly people. And in this predatory spirit, they will also financially abuse you, take your money, borrow money, don't give you back. They will start living with your money. Start calculating how much money you're going to earn and how much money they're going to spend. And these are behaviors that are consistent with the predatory spirit, pouncing upon a person with a victim spirit. Don't even talk about whether or not you are honored or not.

You are most definitely dishonored in every form of way. They would say anything and everything to you, regardless of who's around. And while they are capable of putting up a front in front of other people, like they are this, the bee's knees and the cat's whiskers, like they are visiting the king of England. There's a king now, no longer a queen. Like they are visiting the king of England. They put on this persona of excellence. But when it comes to you, not one thing that you see them doing with other people will be done to you.

In a victim mindset, you're the one that's not worthy to do the preaching, not worthy to do the testifying of the word, not worthy to do this, that. Because you don't see yourself worthy. You don't want to pray. You don't want to be standing up there. Because you're worried about the words. You're worried about how people are going to see you. You're not good enough. And they rob you. They rob you from having any joy. But this is also another spirit that comes in.

You see, when you become numb, and almost you have like a deadlike state, there is another spirit that needs to be cast out. And only the cross of Jesus can deal with that. Because the Holy Spirit quickens us and brings us back to life. The same spirit that rose Jesus from the dead, that's the one that's going to quicken you and bring you back to life. The predator is very clever in that they are deceiving. They are deceptive. They will let you think that the abuse you're suffering is your fault.

And they will constantly want to keep you a victim so they can abuse you to satisfy their satanic and sadistic lust for you. And if you can't tell the difference, that you are actually being abused, you have a victim spirit, that you are trapped, then there's going to be a lot of healing when you eventually do realize it. That needs to be done on your part. And that person may get away with this for years and years before you actually come out of it.

So you've got to know, before they train you to believe the lies, you've got to know the word of God and know the truth, so you can discern. So you've got to know the truth and do not allow them to be done. Break your discernment between lies and truth. They always want the victim to accept the lies as truth as opposed to the truth being the truth. Another coping mechanism or another way a person with a victim spirit operates is that they adopt worldly ideas for their life.

They don't have a godly standard. They have a worldly idea. They have a worldly standard. They accept what other people do because they lack a godly standard within their life. And so your potential is then stamped out. It's made null and void. The other person is worthy for healing. You're not worthy for healing because you've got a victim mindset. Well, maybe it's not for me. This is my portion in life. The other person is worthy of the pastor praying for them and people, godly people, hopefully laying hands on them so that they can receive the spirit and speak in tongues and do all these things.

And your mindset is, no, it's not for me. No, it's not for me. I don't feel worthy of it. I don't feel like God is going to do anything for me. I pray like everybody else and God doesn't hear me. That is a victim mindset. And the predator, Satan, has got a larger portion in how you think and in how you act and in the decisions you ultimately live by. One of the biggest things a victim can say is when they look at the family that I was born into the wrong family and that I was cursed with this family.

You know that saying you can't choose your family and you feel like you just got the wrong family, you were born into the wrong family, you were cursed with this family. That is a victim mindset. Another victim mindset is you think you don't look good enough. Your appearance isn't good enough. Because people are hard on themselves. The world has done a good job in producing a standard for beauty that conforms to this one idea. And we are diverse people.

And if we are trying to conform to this secular view of beauty, then we might feel or tell ourselves that we are cursed with our looks. And that is not true because God loved you before the womb. God loved you in the womb. And God himself made you. And if you're still holding on to this victim mindset, then one of the most disappointing things of a victim mindset is that you believe you've got no future. You believe your life is going nowhere. You do the same mundane things day in, day out.

It is like your birthright has been sucked away from you. And your destiny has been stolen. While everybody is flourishing, you are just stuck and you complain about everything. It's difficult to talk to you. People will try to... People avoid you. Because they know the first thing that's going to come out of your mouth is a complaint. And the last thing before the goodbye is the last complaint. So when you're looking at your life and you're trying to assess...

I mean, if you've made it this far in the podcast. And you're trying to assess whether or not you've got a victim mindset. You can see it in... Your finances, the men of God who serve God, didn't struggle for finances. Well, not all of them. They didn't struggle for finances. Abram was rich. And your relationships, you always seem to attract the wrong one. Never the right one. It's always the wrong one that is attracted to you. The same abuse you suffered in that relationship is the same abuse you're suffering in this relationship.

You can't excel at work. You don't seem to be offered the promotions. Even if you are in ministry, your ministry is going nowhere. If you are cleaning the church for the last 20 years, that's where you've been stuck. You don't have the desire to do anything more, even though you see it, but you don't believe it's for you. And then you will always, always settle for less. Even if God says you'll have daily bread, you're the one that says it's better to have a half a loaf of bread.

You cut the things God would give you gladly and freely with this kind of mindset. You have no joy. And you're constantly being dishonored and disrespected. And maybe you've even developed that attitude that you disrespect others. Before they get you, you get them. That's the spirit of rejection. And when God has called you to walk in the fullness of the dominion, in fullness of the dominion, you say, No, Lord, this talent you gave me, let me just bury it until such time you return.

That's a victim mindset, that. And so some of the traits and some of the characteristics then also show, aren't you the one always going for operations, losing money, always getting into accidents, always hurting yourself, always having this suicidal thought, this self-destructive way of life. And you never seem to get justice in your life. The people always get away with the things they do to you. That's a victim mindset. And eventually you get to the point where it's okay, it's just part of life, it's okay.

That's life. Murphy's Law. We chuck it down to things like Murphy's Law. The people you expect to help you never help you in the way you want to be helped. If they help you, it's always going to be this half-baked, half-cooked style that you get no joy or satisfaction from. Or you've got friends who will constantly take your money. I know we've been through this, but we've got to see. You can't grab a hold of your finances. You're on credit cards.

You're broke. You're always borrowing. Money lenders are never far from you. Loans are never far from you. You always have emergencies that drain your money. That's a victim mindset, that. Not even a victim mindset. That's just the spirit of the victim in operation, inside of you. There's always some crisis around the corner. Just when you think, oh, I'm going to balance out today. I'm going to balance out this month. Something crops up. Worst off, if you've got a partner, all they want to do is just violate you.

They watch pornography and they expect you to... Do those things they saw in pornography. Or, on the other hand, as a man, because men also suffer from this, the woman just only wants to use you for your money. Think of it this way here. The way Matthew puts it in Matthew 7 verse 6, how he describes what happens to a victim. He says that, Matthew 7 verse 6 says, Do not give that which is holy a sacred thing to the dogs, dogs or predators, and do not throw away your pearls before hogs, lest they trample upon them with their feet, and turn and tear you in pieces.

You that is trying to be nice to people who you should really be telling to get lost, So, the victim spirit is a way of looking at life, that unknowingly, it's like a self-fulfilling prophecy, you unknowingly attract all of your abusers. That is the job of the victim spirit, is to constantly put you in a position, in a place where you are going to be abused. While God says that, you are holy, you are set apart, you are precious. And God has warned these predators not to touch the anointed, but if you are in agreement with your enemy, how then must God work for your life? Isn't it one of the most humiliating things when you see people disgracing themselves? Don't care anymore, because of the trauma that they've been through.

And even though they're critical of themselves, and they know what's wrong, but they just don't care. And as a result, passers-by or other people will gossip about them, and shame them. And with today's technology, people have got no problem in recording the video, and just dishonoring somebody on the internet for likes and views. That person that is acting out, is screaming for help. And that victim spirit needs to be cast out. They need to be taught the truth, so that cycle can break.

But because of the victim spirit and that I don't care attitude, they are humiliated further. You can't be a people pleaser. That's another trait of the victim spirit. But you are a people pleaser. You want everybody to be happy, like it's your job to make other people happy. It's not your job, it's just the victim spirit. If you have that need and compulsion, if you're in company to be the clown and to make everybody happy, that's the victim spirit.

You need to learn how to hold your peace, be still, and know that God is good. But unfortunately, for many people who have this victim spirit, they tend to suppress the pain, ignore it, pretend like it doesn't exist, find themselves in fantasy worlds, or they bury themselves in things, in hobbies, online games. They never end this reality of what is happening to them because they're always trying to escape from what is happening to them by these many different things.

And we mentioned a few in the beginning, addictions and so on and so forth. Another one is you will not object to being neglected. Being neglected, being second-classed or third-classed or being just completely skipped altogether is fine with you. Because you know what's going to happen and you've spoken it all over your life and you've been through the trauma and you know the drill and you're just going along with the drill. And that is a stronghold of the victim spirit that needs to be dealt with.

What about those who get angry or who can't accept a compliment because of the negativity that they used to? And they can actually get offended if you try to pay them a compliment because they might judge you and think you're after them or you want something from them. So before you get them, they get you. That's the victim mentality. If you're living with a predator and you are a victim of this person, well, obviously you're the victim of this person, then your life tends to revolve around this person and trying to make them happy or trying to please them or trying to get something to make them see value in you.

But you don't realize that all your efforts are only enabling them to hurt you further. You see, this person hasn't had a revelation of the Lord Jesus Christ. So all of your efforts that you are doing as a victim is only enabling this person to become more powerful and dominant over you. It's giving them more rope to speak, hit, assault you and put you down as a predator. So the more you're trying and do, thinking you're actually going to please this person, you'll find out you're far from the truth because this person is going to stomp on you.

There's a particular kind of feeling you also feel when you have this victim spirit in operation inside of your life, this spirit of abuse. You never feel whole and you never feel complete. You always feel like you've been robbed or this person is taking full advantage of you. You have a sense that you've been lied to. When the person tells you, don't worry, nothing's going to happen. Just borrow me what it is they're asking you and you know better, but you can't really act upon better because you're such a people pleaser, you're an enabler and you can't get to the words no.

You feel like you cannot get away from your circumstance or situation or the people around you and that even if you did, nothing will change. You're constantly angry. You're angry at the people who hurt you. You're angry at yourself for being hopeless and helpless. And you want to, you don't want to be the victim. So in your mind, you always have this fantasism. You're the hero. You're the hero in the football game. You're the hero rescuing people from the building.

You always have these hero fantasies. That is a clear indication of a victim mindset. For men, one of the worst things that can happen to a man is being disrespected by his family. You work hard, you provide, you come home and you are disrespected. And you don't speak up about the disrespect that you're receiving. And that is also a victim mindset because as a man, while you have a responsibility to provide, you are also the head of the house. And that doesn't mean you're going to be this misogynist.

No, it means that as head of the house, men receive respect better than they receive love. So when you are respected, then you have value because you feel the acceptance of your family. But when you are disrespected, then you have this victim mentality coming in. And that can lead to other doors opening, like dipping and dabbing in places you shouldn't be busy in. What's that saying? A man who's put in the doghouse soon finds himself in the cat house? Yep.

I'm just going to meander a little bit here. In the realm of the spirits, demons communicate to each other. They are very good at linking people who shouldn't be together. And they put them together. And they can cause strong feelings inside of a person. Sometimes you hear a person say, the Lord told me. The Lord didn't tell you anything. It is your own soulishness that you are listening to when you listen to your soul and not your spirit. And think your soul is your spirit.

It is your own soulishness, your own desires that make you think the Lord told you to. But these familiar spirits are actually creating desires inside of the body. That make it feel and seem like it is the right thing that you are doing. And they have this capability of linking you with the wrong people in life. These are called familiar spirits. And they work in unison to tear and bring you down. So for the victim, the familiar spirit will attract predators.

It's like a deer. Regardless of what a deer does, as long as it's in the field, predators will always come after the deer. Until that deer either dies or is eaten, it will always be on the lookout for predators. And even if that little deer manages to escape one lion, there's another lion somewhere waiting, or a cheetah, or a puma, or a mountain lion, or whatever predator you have in your country, waiting to get at it. And it's the same with relationships.

You get out of one only to... Attract or find or be caught by another predator. So, some of the conclusions that can be reached is that this is my portion in life. Remember I spoke about it when you're coming into agreement with it, that you just need to settle with this as your lot in life. I had a call when I was on a job. Yeah, I was on the job and we were at lunch and this guy was talking about this lady. He was by the house the weekend and he overheard a say to her husband, you no more love me.

And he looked at her and he said, why you say I no more love you? And she said, well you no more hate me anymore. So, obviously you don't love me anymore. And as strange as that sounds, that is the sound of a true victim. Where they have accepted the abuse to the point that they are expecting it and see it as love. So, people who are victims will attract predators. People who are victims will attract poverty because you cannot own your birthright.

You cannot own your destiny. You cannot walk in the things of God. You cannot walk in the higher ranks that you are called to walk. Especially if you are born in a family that constantly put you down. Because they never went far. They never excelled. They never got up and did the tough things. They are quick to let you know, based upon their experience of course, that it is not meant for you. So, poverty is never far away from such a person. And because you have this victim spirit and you never stepped out of the boat and you were just comfortable with the oceans battering you left, right and center.

Then, what about jealousy? You become jealous and envious of people who do well in life, who excel in life. You can't celebrate their victories. You can't celebrate seeing them making it in life. You have a crab mentality. You always want to pull them down, pull them back into the pot. But, your speech is then affected. Your language, your thinking is perverse and perverted by this victim mentality spirit. You sit amongst the gossipers, gossiping about this person and that person.

And you never really mature and become full and successful in your calling. And your jealousy just rages on. It doesn't matter. You could be jealous at another woman. You could be jealous at another man. You could be jealous at the bus driver because they've got a permanent job. Your jealousy knows no bounds. Victim mentality. So, how do we come out of this thing? First of all, God is not a God on survival mode. So, He is not going to just give you that half a loaf of bread so that you survive.

God wants you to thrive. God wants you to be a blessing. God wants you to build His kingdom. He wants to partner with you. And He wants you to import life into others. And He wants you to import life into others. Thank you. Yeah. Thanks for your clarification. And He wants you to grow. And He wants you to be like that city on a hill that cannot be hidden. And so we have to understand that we've got kingdom objectives built into us by God. And we need to first know what are our kingdom objectives.

But before we can get onto that we have to start forgiving people. So probably one of the biggest hurdles we face is releasing people from the trauma that caused us. And you might have a list of people. Your list might extend to the person that dug the grave for your cousin who was shot somewhere because they didn't dig it deep enough or it wasn't to your taste. Just depends on how far you see problems in everything. It just depends. So I'm asking you first of all to go back and pray and ask the Holy Spirit to help you to bring back to remembrance all the times you were hurt, traumatized, sexually assaulted, victimized by people in your life.

You can start with your great-grandpa, grandpa, mom, dad, caregivers, foster caregivers, boyfriends, girlfriends, girlfriends, family members, teachers, church people. However long your list is. And individually write them a letter. And take your time because this is your journey. This is your process. There's nothing that needs to be rushed about it. Because you find that as you are writing, Holy Spirit will show you things and bring things to remembrance.

Because you're going to obviously pray for us to resurface things you have buried. And I know people have an issue with bringing up things they've buried. Being buried doesn't mean that it's put to rest. It just means there's skeletons that can come out of the grave at any time. You have to completely and utterly destroy it. It shouldn't even have a skeleton to remind you of the trauma. When you do think of the trauma, after you've been healed, the pain of it is not as severe.

And at some point you might even just laugh at it and think of it as silly or something that you've survived and nothing can ever break you. Write the list and forgive your people. Forgive them. Forgive the guy who had the courage, the guy who punched you, the girl who punched you, broken, stolen, hurt you, abused you, used you, the family members that were mean to you. Write your letters, write your truth and forgive them. Say in the letter, I forgive you.

When you do this, you start breaking down the strongholds of the enemy inside of your life. Because after you write, I forgive you, you say, Lord Jesus, come and take this pain that I feel, this anger, this bitterness, this resentment towards this person. I forgive them. I release them. In the name of Jesus, I'm asking you now to come and take and loose it from me now. In the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, I give this pain to you. And as you say that, and whether you cough, gag, burp, don't stop.

Cough, gag, burp. That's going, it's going. It is leaving you. And you forgive them as hard as it is. Whether the person is dead, whether the person is alive, you write that letter. And you express what was happened. Whether your dad was around, he wasn't around, abandoned you, your mom abandoned you, abused you. You have to forgive. Regardless of what you think of them, you have to forgive them. So your mind can start being renewed from a place that it is not hurt anymore.

Because you are having this inner healing and this process that the Holy Spirit is leading you to, to expose the lies that they told you. And now you're going to speak your truth. You will say, I know you lied to me. The truth is this, that to the third. And I believe the truth. Ultimately, it's the truth that's going to set you free. And when you've released them and you renewed your mind, set up your boundaries. Learn the word no. Learn the words I'm busy.

Learn the words I really don't have time. Learn the words no. Learn the words no. Learn the words no. Learn to endure the awkward silence and stares. Because once you've put your boundaries in place, people start pulling away from you. And the minute you can stand up for yourself, people stop liking you. And it's okay if people don't like you because you've got boundaries. It just meant they never respected you in the first place. Then also do not tolerate disrespect.

Because you need to be built up in the things of God. You are worthy of respect. And people should start treating you with respect. You don't have to be rude about it. You can politely let them know you will not be disrespected like that. And if they don't know how to speak to you. And if they don't know how to speak to you, it's okay if they don't ever speak to you again. Now you're taking back your authority. As you honor people, they should honor you.

They shouldn't expect you to honor them with birthday parties and gifts and this and that and all of that. Not that you want it, but it's nice to have and receive. It shows love and acceptance and appreciation. But people should honor you. And even if they don't honor you, but they show you respect, that is still honor in itself. Then sit with scripture. And find scriptures that remind you of the love of God in your life. Because that's your true reality.

Your true reality is that God loves you. That's the true reality. God wants to bless you. And as you progress, find love for your ministry. Ask the Holy Spirit what it is that you can do in the house of the Lord. Step out of the boat and walk on the water. Take a leap of faith. Draw from those who are willing to teach you. Grab that anointing. Help others around you. Be a blessing. Bring back your values. Start with God's values first. And as you start with God's values, push out all of the worldly values.

Everything you saw, Beyonce do. And whoever's famous in your country do. And what you saw on TV and you adopted it because you never had proper structure. Kick all that out. See what matters to God. See what matters to Jesus and make that matter to you. Then you'll be given God power in your life and you'll be taking away power from the devil from your life. And you'll be able to change things more when you start living by the Word of God. The Word of God is Shabbat, the two-edged sword.

It's a discerner of the heart. It's a discerner of the thoughts and the intents of the heart. So as you see the Word in, you expect a godly harvest of the Word. Don't let no one rob you of your joy. Be in the house of the Lord. Be under the anointing. If you know people who are killjoys and don't go back there. Dog returns to its vomit. Don't go back there. Start cutting people who are killing your joy. If they can't add value to your life, if you are a dumpster for them, don't invite them over.

There are places you need to go to that they cannot come with you because they're not on your level as you are now progressing out of the victim mentality. And ask God to show you your full dominion so that you can walk in it. Speak blessings over your life. Cancel every negative word, negative prayer, negative prophecy. Cancel it. Consecrate your life back to God in all of these. Everything that He wants you to do, you do it. Then spend time praising worship.

Spend time just enjoying praising God for loving you. Spend time listening to some sermons that pick you up. Not mega past the sermons. Fluff now. Sound doctrine sermons of course. And pursue your blessings. Pray for them. And ask God to send you the things, the people, your community. Ask Him to send them to you, the godly people. And know that you can never actually repay God back. But everything He did for you, He did it in love when He sent His Son.

And then, most importantly, above everything, and obviously not above God, you must take responsibility for your own self. As an adult, if you're listening to this as an adult, you are responsible for the outcomes of your life. And you cannot stay in pain that is disabling. You need healthy emotions and your emotional tank needs to be filled up. But it's your responsibility to prevent others from draining their emotions from you. And it's your responsibility to fill it up daily with the word of God, praise and worship.

And not through jealousy, envy, and all those other things that a victim mindset does, looking over the fence at what other people have and what you don't have. You're clawing and fighting your way to come back. So it's going to be a journey. It's going to be a process. You're going to have to start shedding people. And there might be new people that are coming into your life. And the new people need to be scrutinized that they are not secretly predators.

Because you do get sheep in wolves' clothing. Now let that sink in. So we're just going to trust God. As you write your letters, you give up all of the pain and the suffering. And you give it over to God in prayer. And you speak your truth to Him. And you just let go. Don't ask God, why me? Why me? That is a victim mentality. Thank God that your time has come as you listen to this podcast to be set free. And we're just going to thank God for everything that He has done.

And ask Holy Spirit to be in your life. Ask Him to be in your prayers. Ask Him to be in your thoughts. Ask Him to minister to you. Ask Him to shed the love of God abroad inside of your heart. And to be your joy, your anointing, your portion daily. God bless you. I'm Ashton Campbell and I'll see you on another one.
