I greet you in the wonderful name of Jesus. Hello to you all. My name is Ashton Campbell and this is my very first podcast and I'd like to welcome every single one of you. Thank you very much for tuning in. Today's subject is going to be on generational curses. Generational curses is not something that you often hear about in church settings and church sermons because it deals with very touchy and sensitive issues that people struggle with and most people are not even aware that there could be generational curses in operation within their lives.

Whether it's positive or whether it's negative, whether it's direct or indirect, each parent, guardian or master has had a hand in our existence today. Your bloodline is either one-fold with promises and blessings and things are going well for you or one-fold with curses and sufferings. Many people suffer as a result of what they inherited from their bloodline. Mom had cancer, mom had cancer, aunt had cancer, you find that the gran had cancer. There's heart disease in the family.

Family members have got mental issues, various issues. Mental issues, issues of divorce in the family. If you look at how many people are actually divorced in your family, you might find that there's a high rate of divorce. You find aunties with no children and there's no medical reason why they cannot have children, but they are suffering from barrenness. There might be four or five aunties in the family and none of them are married. Maybe only your mom is married or maybe you're just a child out of bedlock.

If you keep looking in your family, you'll find there's addictions, there's bad habits that people have. Some may have no opportunities, little opportunities. Men die young in the family, they're in their thirties, forties. Worst case scenario in their teens. Mothers bearing sons. If you look at your family members and do a comparison with regards to success in life, how many have excelled? That's a question you've got to make a chart out and just put a question mark on top and see who's excelled, who's got degrees, who's got businesses, who's making their own money.

Or are the family members broke, poor, in poor paying jobs, there's a history of violence, substance abuse, addiction, addictions being drugs and alcohol. Also could be pornography, anything that is excessive. It can even be gaming. And when you check this history and you do a comparison, you do a side by side with your own life. And then you can see what exactly are the strongholds in your family's, in your family's history. There may be suicide, anger issues, dirty family secrets.

Families got a lot of secrets that they hide in the closet. There may be also witchcraft. Gran was a witch, a white witch, a black witch. There's no such thing as a white witch. Maybe your grandfather was a mason, a freemason, belonged to some secret society, made pledges. There may be... Family members who have committed murder. And the list is endless. We can go on with the list, but these are just some of the things that you can put on your list if you want to do a comparison chart with you against your family and see just how far you have come in life and what the strongholds are for your family.

So we're going to look into scripture and see where these curses came from, how they entered into the bloodline. We're going to see what disruptions they have caused. You may not be reaching your full potential because some of these generational curses have not been repented of. One of the biggest telltale signs that there's a generational curse that is in operation in your life is when you are constantly overlooked for positions, you are constantly overlooked for opportunities, you are constantly in a space of rejection.

And you have the degrees, you have the capabilities, you have the knowledge, but the opportunities never seem to manifest for you. Even with your dating life, you find yourself being rejected. Relationships don't last long. You, in a three-month honeymoon period in this relationship, and then the next three months, things just fall apart. And it's consistent, it's relationship after relationship after relationship, then you're going to have to go back and look at your family history.

You're going to have to look at what exactly is causing you to have such consistent failure on a daily basis that you think that there's maybe something wrong with myself. So we're going to use scriptures and we're going to unlock these mysteries. And if you stick with me and stay for the journey, then hopefully we will remove all of these blockages away from your life. We take it for granted that the mishaps of life are just the everyday workings of life.

But nothing ever really happens to you in the physical before it happens to you in the spiritual. You've got to ask yourself, is this heaven's will for my life? Is the struggles you're currently going through really the will of God for my life? Or is there something else that is working against me that I need to address in the spiritual realm so that I can get my life back on track to where God wants me to be? So I'm going to share a brief testimony of my life.

When I was young, my parents had split up and got divorced. So I never had the opportunity of living with a mother and a father together. And I lived with my gran for a while while my mother lived in another area. And eventually I went to go live with my mother. I went to school. I got decent grades. After I had finished grade 12, I started experiencing some pains in my legs and I didn't understand why I was experiencing pains. I was a young man. I gymmed.

I went jogging. In school I played sports. And I just shrugged it off as... Something that happens in life. Later on I went to work at a multinational company and I experienced some very dark things there. It was the first time my eyes opened to the occultic side of life where people use witchcraft for gain and furtherance and they used it against me and I was highly ignorant of it. I went to a very religious church and the teaching was you've got to be in church and when you're in church you're a good member and good members, God blesses good members that attend church weekly.

So nobody really had the tools to assist me with the issues that I was facing. I eventually got married and I wasn't married for long. My marriage fell apart and while my marriage was falling apart everybody was just looking at me and while they might have not known the personal details of why my marriage was falling apart and what I was going through, nobody came to assist me. And you have all these people with big titles in the church and none of them offered help.

So for two years I went through the worst hell of a divorce. So I just said to myself, this can't be the will of God for my life. But I was angry and I was bitter. I was upset with the church people. I was upset with church leadership. I was disillusioned. And you can't be going to church and hearing God's got this plan for you and God's got that plan for you and claim it and grab it and all these things. But when you're looking at your life, there is nothing going right in your life.

So many years went by and I suffered in silence until one day I just gave up suffering. It was at that point I realized I have to do something. And I started researching the word of God. I started researching what the Bible says about my problems. And I started using Bible applications to resolve the issues that I was having. And little did I know, I had been suffering from generational curses. And this journey took me to look at my own family history to see exactly where my family is in life.

When I began looking around, I realized that there was a lot of divorce in my family. I think there's very few people who are actually married to the same person. There's a lot of alcoholism in my family. There's a lot of waywardness in my family. Family members disappearing, going on adventures and you don't see them for years. And then they just come back all of a sudden. There was also a cap on how successful we were. And nobody broke that cap that was on our lives.

And so I began to dig through the scriptures to find exactly what the issue is. And surprise, surprise, God had a lot to say about what your parents do and how it affects the children. And so I began to dig through the children. And so I began to dig through the children. And so I began to dig through the children. And so I began to dig through the children. And I was quite shocked that the actions of my parents actually could negatively impact me.

So I wanted to know who my parents were. And I'm not talking about when I was born and they raised me and all of that. I'm talking about before I was born. I wanted to know who my mother was before I was born. Who my dad was before I was born. Who my granny was. Who her mother was. You see, in my culture, it wasn't the norm for a child to ask their parents and grandparents questions. You just had to accept what you were told. And you were told very little.

You had to be grateful that you existed, basically. And not to question why you're here. So, in my journey, I then found out that there were Sangomas in my family. I didn't know that. I was quite stunned when I heard that one of the uncles was a Sangoma. So I immediately knew that there was a door opened through occultism, witchcraft. And that led me now to find out how can I detach myself from this, or has this uncle, which I never ever met in my life, has he somehow bound me as the next generation or the third generation to his altar for power or whatever that he was doing? And then, I found out that my granny's mother was a traditional black woman from the Chanskai area.

And when I, I never knew that, but when it was revealed to me this, then I realized that there are ancestral practices in my family that worship ancestors, that slaughter cows and goats and other animals to the ancestors for, well, I don't believe in luck, so I'm going to use the word fortune for gain, for power. And I was quite stunned at my family history. And then there was the issue of the dreams. I would have these vivid dreams. And I knew they were from God because he kept on showing me things.

He kept on showing me things like water, snakes. He kept on showing me crocodiles. He kept on showing me, he kept on showing me rivers. And in these rivers, there would be dead people. In the mud, underneath the rivers, there would be snakes. He kept on showing me these ladies that were standing and watching me. There was three of them. And I remember they wore this traditional Zioni white garb with a stick. And these ladies would prevent me from entering into the church.

And I had to do the investigation. I had to start asking hard questions in my family. It was not easy because, like I said previously, that children were not allowed to ask these questions. Well, my mother and dad... We're not allowed to ask their parents' questions. So we got information bits, so I got information bits and pieces through various people. And I started engaging the family in the dialogue. And I said, let's have this discussion. Then I found out, hey, wait a minute.

My granny is not from South Africa. She is from the former colony, Lorenzo Marx. She was an orphan. She was abandoned with her two sisters. I don't know of any brothers that she had. And she moved to South Africa later on. And that, like I had mentioned, my mother's people were also doing their business according to their culture and their traditions. And my granny had learned this. And she had also practiced this. And I didn't know all of this. And I looked at the history of my dad.

And when he told me his history, I was stunned. Because I knew my dad from the time I was born. So I didn't know what his life was previously. And when I had did my family tree, my generational tree, and I had listed all of the problems, I began to see the patterns that we inherited in and through our family bloodlines. And so I slowly began to address those issues. It was not easy. Not many people speak accurately on this topic. And as I did, I then managed to start breaking the curses that were over my life.

The pains in my legs. The pains in my upper body. The rejection. The near success mentality. God was very instrumental in showing me through dreams what I had to look at, where I had to go, and how I had to address these issues. Because I asked him, I said, Lord, I need to know why am I suffering like this? This is not the will and plan for my life from you. And he began to show me, and I was obedient to an extent. Some days I would have reactions that I'd say to myself, I need to take a week off or I need to take two weeks off before I come back and start addressing this.

So far, I think I must have gotten rid of issues in the region of maybe 60 to 70. And I lived with these things. And I thought it was just normal. And when they had left me, when they had gone, when they had been broken, when they had been silenced, then I realized that there's a different me. I actually had more control over my impulses. And my impulses were no longer the negative impulses that I would have. And even my conversation about myself changed.

I no longer had a negative outlook on who I was because I had addressed all these influences that have been dominating my life over the past 40 years. And I would like to share this with you. So we're going to now go into the scriptures and we are going to look at the first human to human curse that is recorded in the Bible. And from there, we're going to gradually build and see how curses affect the lives of those who have been cursed. So in the book of Genesis chapter 9, we see that Noah had just survived the flood and he began to plant a vineyard and he got drunk and his son Ham went into the tent and we don't really know what happened.

But when Ham came out, he told his brothers that his father is in the tent naked and the brothers went in backwards with a covering and they covered their father. When Noah woke up, he realized what Ham had done and Noah had three sons. He had Shem, Ham and Japhoneth. And then Noah cursed, not Ham, but Ham's son. And Noah said to Ham, curse be Canaan, a servant of servants he will be. Notice the direction which the curse was pointing the son of Ham.

And he said to him that he will be a servant of Shem, his brother and Canaan was also made a servant of Japhoneth. But he blessed the other two and he made them increase in stature and he gave them positions in each other's house. So when we look at this, while Noah did not directly curse Ham, he cursed the children of Ham. And in chapter 10 of Genesis, we see that the children of Ham was Canaan and then Canaan got Sidion and Heth and Jebusite and they moved and they became Sodom and Gomorrah.

So from the time Ham was cursed, his descendants ultimately became one of the most perverse nations that had to be destroyed by God because of this generational curse that had been in operation in their lives through Noah. This was the first human to human curse. As we see taking place. Now, we're not going to speak about Adam and we're not going to speak about Cain and Abel, but we're speaking about the human to human curse, which helps us to realize that it is possible for our parents to directly curse us and put us under a curse.

And they can lock us and they can lock us and block us from ever becoming successful in life through the words they have spoken over our lives. The scripture teaches us that our words have power, death and life are in the power of the tongue. And so we've got to be very careful how we engage this unknown. Ruli evil, that is our tongue. The second person I want to look at is Abraham. God told Abraham he must leave the land which his father was living in, and he must go to where God sends him.

In Abraham's journey, he met a king. The king's name was King Abimelech. And Abraham lied about Serebine, his wife. And God came to King Abimelech in a dream, and he said, look, you are in trouble here. And King Abimelech said to the Lord, what I did, I did out of the integrity of my heart. I didn't really do this with nasty intentions. So God gave him instructions on how to receive Abraham. And he told him, do not say anything good. Do not say anything bad.

And while I was thinking about this, I realized that if King Abimelech said anything good, then he was condoning Abraham's actions. And if he said anything bad, then he was coming against God's promises on Abraham's life, where he said, I will bless those that bless you, and I will curse those that curse you. So God said to him, say nothing. After he had released Abraham and his wife, Abraham then waited for the promise of God to have a son. His first son that he had was Ishmael.

And his second son he had was Isaac. Ishmael was a torment to Isaac. So God told Abraham that he needs to do what his wife has commanded him to do. And his wife said, Ishmael must go. God bless Hagar and Ishmael. Then Isaac, who was the promised son, also had a wife later on in life. And he did the same lie, said the same lie that his father said. Then Isaac had two sons by his wife. And his wife helped Jacob to deceive Isaac. And Jacob and the wife lied to Isaac.

And Isaac blessed Jacob. And Jacob fled. And he met Rachel. And he wanted to marry Rachel. And so Laban said to him, you've got to work seven years for my daughter. And he did. But Laban was deceptive to Jacob. Now Jacob was a deceiver. He deceived his father for the blessing. And he was helped by his mother. Now Laban deceived Jacob. And instead of him marrying Rachel, he woke up in the morning and found he had married Leah. And eventually he had sons.

And his sons were also liars except for Joseph. And when they went home, they had taken the coat and they had stained it with blood. And they told their father a lie. And they said to their father, oh, you know, this is what we found. We don't know what happened to him. So they lied. So from the lie of Abram, it bent Abram, it then went and it bent Isaac. It bent Jacob further and it bent his sons even further. That it's... That it's... Just continually spread within the family.

And that is a pattern of self-inflicted generational curses where the lies become so bent in the family that everybody in the family just starts telling lies. So we see Joseph's sons were all not holy. Reuben slept with his mother's maid, his father's concubine. And his brothers Simon and Levi went to go kill the man that raped their sister. They killed an entire tribe. They committed murder. They deceived the men. And Jacob was worried that there will be a retaliation.

We also see that Judah, he slept with Tamar. Tamar was in the roadway and she presented herself as a prostitute. And we know out of the tribe of Judah comes Christ Jesus. And Dan is considered a servant. He is considered the one who came up with the plan to get rid of Joseph. And so we see when Jacob was dealing with them now, he wanted to tell them the future and he wanted to make them aware of what's going to happen. So it was time for him to bless them or curse them.

So for Reuben he said, and for Reuben before the curse he said, that Reuben is his might, is his strength, excellency of dignity, excellency of power. These were the things Reuben was before. Jacob had pronounced a curse over him. Then Jacob said to him, unstable as water. This is mental issues. This is indecisiveness. Thou shalt not excel. And that's pretty straightforward. Even if he had all the necessary skills in life, he was not going to make it.

Because he went into his father's bed. For Simon and Levi, because they had committed murder, he called them the instruments of cruelty and their habitations. Cursed be their anger, for it was fierce. He cursed their anger. Their wrath was cruel. And he divided them in Jacob and in Israel. So before the nation of Israel had been established, a curse had already been spoken over the brothers Levi and Simon. And we can see that once they had left Egypt and were nearing the promised land, that we see that these curses were reversed.

In the book of Deuteronomy, chapter 33, we see Moses reversing some of the curses. For Reuben, he said, let Reuben live and not die, nor his people be few. So finally, the curse of Jacob had been lifted off the Reubenites. After 400 years, being in Egypt, and now at the doorstep of the promise of God. So Judah, he said, bless all Judah's skills. So we can see that Moses had blessed all of the tribes. Some say Simeon wasn't blessed, but in the blessing of Israel, Simeon was blessed.

The tribe of Simeon was later absorbed by Judah. So generational blessings and generational curses do exist. We can see from scripture that a father has the power to curse his children and his children's children. We see the curses of Jacob lasting 400 years over the children of Israel. So anybody who wants to say that generational curses don't exist, clearly don't read their Bible. What we find is that Moses is from the tribe of Levi. And if you look carefully at the tribe of Levi, Levi had suffered from anger, wrath, and cruelty.

See, Moses also suffered from anger. He got angry when he saw the Egyptian beating the Jewish slave and he murdered him. And when he was out in the desert, his cruelty showed when he came down from the mountain and the people were dancing around the calf. He ground up the gold and he made them eat it. So Moses had generational issues running in his life. Judah had married an outside woman. And when we look at his bloodline, we can see that David came out of the bloodline of Judah.

Judah and David had an affair with Bathsheba. And there was rape in David's family. And when Solomon was born, Solomon had 700 wives, a lot of them outside women. And he also had 300 concubines. And these women eventually negatively influenced him into worshipping idols. So generational curses can start somewhere and carry on in the bloodline. And everybody accepts it as normal, as just who we are, as what we do. But if you don't check your bloodline, if you don't come against these things, then you will be continually bound in a cycle that was never meant for you in the first place.

So I hope you enjoyed this introduction to generational curses and a look from a biblical perspective. We did leave out a few people like Jezebel and her bloodline. So I hope this was an eye-opener for you to see that curses do exist. They don't just exist from ancient times. They also exist now. No, it's just that the churches don't want to really speak about curses and only focus on your blessings coming, your blessings coming, your blessings coming, your blessings coming.

Who's going to deliver the blessing? We first have to reverse the curses that are working in our lives. And so that all things can become new in our lives as Christ has made it for us. I hope you enjoyed the podcast. My name is Ashton Campbell. If you did, sharing it would be fantastic. So in the next part, we're going to look at curses from the lowest perspective and see exactly how God instituted curses and how some of those curses are still working in the lives of people to this day.
